

The world is full of stories. We'd love to hear yours.

A writing competition for Cambridge Early Years and Primary teachers.

Every great story starts with an idea. This is your opportunity to share yours with young readers around the world by having your story published!

We're looking for original stories written by teachers that capture children's imaginations and stay with them long after the last page.

If your story is selected by our judges, you could have the opportunity to write for our Cambridge Reading Adventure series, reaching young readers in classrooms around the world.

What are we looking for?

We are looking for engaging stories that young children will want to hear, read and return to. We want stories that reflect the people, places, experiences, and cultures of children around the world, inspired by everyday life in your community, a celebration, or a storytelling tradition from your region. We want stories that are funny, exciting, surprising, warm or imaginative.

Here are some ideas to get you started – but you can come up with your own!

- A day out
- Animals in trouble
- Something is lost
- A story from your home
- A problem that a child solves
- Time to celebrate

Our priority is to hear your voice, your ideas, and your imagination. Please write the story yourself rather than using generative AI to create or rewrite your entry.

Your story could become part of a reading journey that inspires and impacts children around the world. So, tell us: what story will you share?

Entry details

Word limit: Maximum 800 words

Entries open: Monday 19 October

Deadline: Friday 30 October

Entrants must be aged 18 or over.

One entry per person.

Submit your story

Full competition terms

